

Roofline

with the Network VEKA difference...

An often overlooked finishing touch to a beautiful home improvement project, PVC-U replacements are a hassle-free route to a crisp new roofline.

Comprising guttering, fascia boards, soffits and cladding, your home's roofline is something that's very easy to forget about... until it breaks or requires maintenance.

It helps to have an guaranteed expert on your side...

Depending on when your house was built there's a possibility that some, if not all aspects of the roofline could be made from wood and susceptible to rotting and warping if not maintained correctly.

Inevitably, this involves precariously scaling ladders to the upper extremes of your house, paintbrush and scraper in hand, or footing the bill for a professional to undertake the work for you.

Substituting the woodwork for modern PVC-U replacements is a straightforward route to a crisp and maintenance-free roofline that, potentially, could last for decades.

There are many dangers to neglecting or ignoring your home's roofline that could lead to time-consuming and costly repairs. Blocked rainwater products, like drains and guttering, can overflow down your outside walls, creating conditions that are ideal for damp and mould. This could allow moisture to creep into the roof space, damaging the integrity of joists and rafters and even creating spaces big enough for birds and rodents to pass through and nest.

Roofline installations from your local Network VEKA member are subject to the long-life, low-maintenance and insurance-backed guarantees associated with all our work. Don't neglect one of the most vulnerable areas of your home - ask your installer how we could help today.
